Aurionpro Solutions | BUY | Target Price | Rs: 2,070

Strong revenue growth on the back of deal wins and M&A

We maintain our Buy rating on the stock with a target price of Rs2,070. Aurionpro delivered a strong Q1FY26, led by continued momentum in the Banking segment (31% growth YoY) on the back of strong deal wins in Sri Lanka, UK and Africa. The TIG segment (25% growth YoY) continued its strong momentum in a seasonally weak quarter. Employee cost was elevated on the back of appraisals, ESOP cost and new sales hires across USA, Africa and Europe. R&D expense continues to be in the range of 9-9.5% vs 8% historically on the back of higher spend on new products in the AI segment, data centers and banking. We model 25%+ organic growth over FY26E–27E, backed by a strong order book, consistent execution, and a healthy balance sheet.

- Banking delivers strong growth, while TIG continues its momentum: Aurionpro's Banking segment grew by 31% YoY, driven by deal wins in Sri Lanka, Africa and UK. Icashpro continues to gain acceptance globally as the fastest transaction banking suite and we expect strong deal wins in APAC & India in FY26. AMCs for the products also get booked in Q1, which helped growth for the banking segment. TIG segment grew by 25% YoY on the back of deal wins in Egypt and California. Chennai Metro implementation has begun in Q1 while Delhi Metro is expected to being in Q2. The company has added sales staff across USA, Africa, Europe and UK. The orderbook grew to Rs 14.6 Bn (4.3% QoQ growth, 46% YoY growth) in-line with our estimate of Rs 14.5 Bn. We believe continuing deal wins across both segments will reflect in strong orderbook and topline growth.
- Margins to be at the lower end of the guidance of 20-22%: While topline growth continued to be robust, margins were under pressure due to higher employee cost and R&D expenses. Employee costs were higher in Q1 on the back of appraisals, ESOP cost and employee addition on the back of Fenixys and Fintra acquisitions. R&D expenses were at 9.2-9.5% of sales vs 8% historically. We expect R&D expense to remain at 9-10% going ahead as the company continues to invest in its AI stack, product development for data centers and transit solutions. We believe higher opex expenses will continue to weigh on margins and we expect margins to remain in the 20-20.5% band going ahead for FY26.
- Outlook: Aurionpro continues to be on a firm strategic footing, backed by strong execution, a healthy order book, and a future-ready product portfolio. The company has an order book of Rs 14.6bn, which supports 25% organic growth visibility. Beyond this, new deal wins, and potential M&A activity are expected to further accelerate growth. Strategic investments — such as the acquisition of Arya.ai, the establishment of AI labs in Paris and Mumbai, the expansion into Europe, and growing focus on the Middle East (ME) are poised to drive long-term value.
- Valuations, view & risks: We are factoring in 25.5%/26.4%/28.0% Revenue/EBITDA/PAT over FY25-FY27E, and value the company at 35x Q1FY28 PE, resulting in a TP of Rs 2,070. We have revised our revenue growth on the back of strong execution and continued deal wins, while we have trimmed our margins on the back of higher opex. We believe the company can continue growing at 30%+ (with acquisitions) over the next 2 years, along with 20-21% margins and a strong balance sheet. Our base case estimates do not factor any acquisitions. Key risks: Slowdown in BFSI IT spends in India and APAC; delay in metro projects and data centers.
